A Wine "Ohhh" Moment -- Toasting Le Vin's Face Cream

Need another reason to love wine? In addition to its culinary properties and delicious flavor, wine contains non-alcoholic phytochemicals like resveratrol (which I refer to as reverse-it-all) which help to reduce the risk cardiovascular disease and, according to a recent study, might even help fight early stage cancer.

The quarterback of the Le Vin line-up is its Face Cream, a gentle moisturizer with a light consistency (it feels like a thinner version of vanilla yogurt, and it glides onto the skin like margarine—but minus any greasiness).

The primary ingredient in Le Vin's Face Cream is the brand's proprietary Vita-Vino Actif complex, a blend of Chardonnay grape seed extract, resveratrol, and vitamins A, B, C, D and E.

I've been using Le Vin Face Cream for a month and have been in awe of the results -- not only does it provide instant relief (which is key, especially in the winter season), but it yields long-lasting hydration and keeps your skin looking fresh and smooth.

Dionysus would be proud.
